

PRINCIPALS OF EXCELLENCE

Announcing the Winners of The Washington Post Annual Distinguished Educational Leadership Awards

It takes a great many people to make a school great—fine teachers, fine staff, fine students, caring parents who take the time and trouble to participate in school affairs. Above all, it takes a great principal.

Because we believe good leadership is an essential ingredient of good schools and deserves all the support and encouragement we can give it, each fall

The Washington Post Educational Foundation calls for educational leadership awards nominations from the community.

Please join us in honoring this year's winners—18 people who day after day go beyond the demands of their highly demanding professions to create exceptional educational environments for our children.
